

FEATURES | Coming tomorrow

GET THE SKINNY

From "The Daily Show" to Nightly News, who do students and professors listen to when they want news?

SPORTS | 5

SAY WHAT?

How does Chad Huffman calm himself down between every pitch? It's time for a little Q&A.

TCU DAILY SKIFF

WWW.TCUDAILYSKIFF.COM

THURSDAY, JANUARY 26, 2006

VOL. 104, ISSUE 7

Drugs, alcohol found after false fire alarm

By LYDIA AKINDE Staff Reporter

Police are investigating a false fire TCU police report. alarm that turned into a drug search tin-Moore Hall on Friday.

alarm drew TCU police officers Richard Teakell and Walker Johnson to the student's room. Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity house. Johnson, who was the first to arrive, the incident, police said, and through students.

found the activated fire alarm in a an identification number on the

In the report, Teakell said officers in one of the third-floor rooms of Marnoticed the fire alarm had been hit and chair, police said, they found a pipe damaged by a chair. Police said they It was around midnight when an found a trail of splinters on the floor, which they followed to an undisclosed hallway near a room, according to a chair, the officers traced it to anoth- the floor of the room, police said, but er room.

> While checking the room for the or older. on a desk in the room that smelled of marijuana.

The police declined to identify the room number, and the university case, detective Vicki Lawson said. The student denied knowing about would not disclose the names of the Officers found a case of beer on neither of the room's residents are 21

While searching for marijuana in the room, they also found five more cans full of beer, police said.

TCU police are still investigating the Lawson did not name any sus-

See DRUGS, page 2

CAMPUS EXPANSION

Improvements, renovation set for bookstore

Trailers to serve as makeshift stores during construction

By LIZ CRAWFORD $Staff\ Reporter$

Merchandise will soon be moved out of the TCU Bookstore and into trailers located in the bookstore parking lot in order to prepare for construction, said Lisa Lewis, the store's general manager.

The trailers, which open Feb. 27, will provide about a quarter of the space the current bookstore has. Merchandise from the general reading and textbook sections of the bookstore will not be available but school supplies and clothing will, Lewis said.

Cody Visone, a junior entrepreneurial management major, said he is concerned with how the trailers will look to the passersby.

"It probably won't have much curb

Lewis said many students currently park in the bookstore parking lot, but since the lot will be occupied by trailers and construction equipment, students will have to park elsewhere.

Ben Napier, a junior radio-TV-film major, said this will make parking on campus even

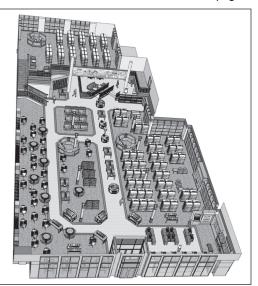

The hours for the temporary bookstore are still in negotiation, but it will be a fullservice store with full-service hours. Morning operating hours will not change, Lewis

In May, when textbook buyback begins, students will be able to sell their books back at a location on campus. The University Recreation Center, the Brown-Lupton Student Center and Worth Hills are being considered, Lewis said.

After the renovation, the bookstore will have a second floor just for textbooks. This area will be almost three times the size of the current textbook area, Lewis said. Also, an expansion of the bookstore café will provide more seating for students and visitors.

The north entrance will be renovated to

See BOOKSTORE, page 2

Courtesy of TCU Bookstore New floor plans for the TCU Bookstore boast an entire second floor, larger library and more seating.

ART OF SCROUNGING

TCU professor finds treasures in local dumpsters

By DAN MCGRAW Staff Reporter

Most people don't think of the dumpster behind Panera Bread as a bakery or the trash pile behind Target as a supermarket, but for eight months, one TCU criminologist did.

Jeff Ferrell, a professor of criminal justice, recently released his book "Empire of Scrounge" that details the eights months of dumpster-diving he did in Fort Worth.

After Ferrell, who grew up in Fort Worth, left a tenured post at Northern Arizona University in 2001 over a disagreement with administrators, he took the opportunity to live life as a scrounger. "It was the way of life that I always wanted to explore," Ferrell said. "I wanted to know how they lived and this was my chance."

Ilene Kalish, the editor of "Empire of Scrounge" and

See DUMPSTER, page 2 diving to surface with his book "Empire of Scrounge."

PHOTOS BY LANA HUNT / Chief Photographer Professor of criminal justice Jeff Ferrell spent eight months dumpster

DINING

Students wanting additions

Student traffic fuels dining structure

By MICHAEL DODD Staff Reporter

The TCU Dining Services' staff and administration said they have made many improvements to campus eateries, but some students say they want to see even more changes and additions to the dining options around campus.

Rick Flores, director of Dining Services, said student traffic is the reason for the structuring of eateries throughout the campus.

"[Dining Services] is working very well in the Smith (Entrepreneurs Hall) with the Sub Connection because the unit is on the ground floor and students walking by know it is there," Flores said. "Jazzman's (Café), in Tucker Technology (Center), which is on the lower level, doesn't have any traffic, so it's very hard to keep that unit alive in that location, because there isn't enough student participation."

Traffic has played such a big part in the structuring of dining services because they have learned that students won't walk four minutes for food, Flores said.

"If it's not right next to them, they aren't going to go out of their way to get it," Flores said.

Despite this fact, the Moudy Building is currently without a proximate dining option, but Flores said Dining Services has done all that they can there. "We did make an effort about three years ago to try to put an operation into Moudy, but it wasn't received or welcome," Flores said. "There were some faculty members there that thought it would be a disturbance to the classroom environment. We weren't accepted there, so we never went back."

Sophomore nursing major Maud Mensa said she also thinks the dining options are limited and that the administration should increase the dining budget.

"They need to make some sort of expansion," Mensa

See DINING, page 2

NEWS BRIEF

Rezoning meeting tonight to discuss problems related to the large numbers of people renting and living in single-family houses in TCU neighborhoods.

be held at 7 p.m. at the Deborah Beggs Moncrief Garden Center at the Botanic Garden, will give regarding the Unrelated Persons citizens and students who were & Rental Registration Task Force's unable to attend last weeks meet-recommendations, call 817-392ing, the chance to voice their con- 8018 cerns for the city to consider, said Anthony Snipes, assistant to the city manager.

Issues that will be presented for discussion by the Unrelated Persons and Rental Registration Student-tenants and Fort Worth Task Force include, reducing the residents will meet again tonight number of unrelated persons in the current ordinance's definition of "family," implementing rental registration costs/fees, the definition of a "secondary dwelling," The public hearing, which will and a residential parking permit

For additional information

- Lydia Akinde; Amy Hallford contributed to this report

On the spot

TY HALASZ / Photo Editor Four Day Weekend players Oliver Tull (left) and Joshua Roberts sing an improvised song at Revive Live! Wednesday night in the Student Center ballroom

WEATHER TODAY: Partly cloudy, 63/46 FRIDAY: Showers 61/52 SATURDAY: Few showers, 69/42 FUN FACT

When Lewis Miller, an Ohio resident, opened his gas bill for nine days of service at a new apartment, he was shocked to find he had been charged $8,095. — ASSOCIATED PRESS

TODAY'S HEADLINES

OPINION: Two columnists square off, page 3

NEWS: What goes into being a TA?, page 4 ARTS: The best rock band in Texas, page 6

CONTACT US

Send your questions, compliments, complaints and hot tips to the staff at NEWS2SKIFF@TCU.EDU